- Theodore Roosevelt was President from 1901 to 1909, and ~~President Roosevelt~~^{he} lived at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue.
- When President Roosevelt lived in the White House, ~~the White House~~^{it} was home for six fun-loving children.
- The children had lots of room to play, and ~~the children~~^{they} thought of new things to do each day.
- Visitors knew about the mischief in the White House, and ~~the visitors~~^{they} were always curious to see what would happen.
- When no one was watching, the children slid down the stairs on trays, and ~~the children~~^{they} roller-skated in the halls.
- The President liked pets, so ~~the President~~^{he} let the children have dogs, cats, birds, rabbits, rats, guinea pigs, raccoons, a snake, and a pony.
- One day, the children put the pony in the elevator so ~~they~~^{it} they could ride ~~the pony~~^{it} upstairs.
- Since the children often played together, ~~the children~~^{they} were called "The White House Gang."
